The 1st of October 2022 will become an important day in the history of the struggles of the trade unions and community and demand-based British movements. We extend to all of you the greetings of the struggle and support of Sudan. The solidarity of the Sudanese Alliance of Demand-based Campaigns (TAM) with the goals and objectives of the “Enough is Enough” campaign is based on your struggle for human rights and citizenship rights, for the achievement of social justice, shrinking the gap between rich and poor and redefining democracy as including the right to a secure life.

Our solidarity and support to the “Enough is Enough” campaign is based on the fact that the objectives and slogans of the campaign have been and will continue to be part of the basic principles of TAM, and your collective action is a contribution to the achievement of justice and the establishment of rights. It is an effort to stimulate the human conscience.

Deliberate impoverishment programmes, rising prices in exchange for reduced services, the collapse of food security for individuals, families and communities, and the exploitation of the lives of millions of poor people for the benefit of a handful of rich people, deserve to be classified as “crimes of genocide.” Hunger, poverty, malnutrition, lack of heating, and shrinking educational opportunities lead to the death of communities or their further exploitation and attrition on the margins of life.

Therefore, solidarity with the “Enough is Enough” campaign is not only about what that phrase means now, but also what we face in the future.

Greetings again to everyone involved in “Enough is Enough” in all British squares and cities.

We will not back down. We have demands.
